I was impressed with the whole process. The auditors were attentive considering the extent of their workload. They did however seem a bit impassive (understandable), it was difficult to get them engaged.

I was surprised with how nervous many of the actors were, moreso than before normal auditions or performance.

This was my first CO-OP audition. Unfortunately, my timing was poor in that I ran out of time halfway through my second piece. I will tighten it up next time.

I guess the proof of the exercise is in if one gets any calls as a result. It might be fun to repeat this forum question in 6 months. :-P
